4. Content

Summary of content by level (typically 150 to 200 words).

The course as a whole considers the phenomenon of film both nationally and internationally and examines historical developments, the contemporary context and projections for the future. It explores the historical and global significance of film and engages students in critical debates about the social, political and ethical issues that film presents. Ethical issues and questions of sustainability are addressed implicitly throughout the course in relation to industry practice and issues of representation and explicitly in a number of modules.

The Film Industry strand contains one compulsory module at each level and concentrates primarily on professional perspectives and critical understanding of industrial, commercial and organisational dimensions of cinema, including its relationship to other media. The Film Analysis strand also contains one compulsory module at each level and concentrates on traditional academic perspectives and the ability to analyse films, evaluate concepts and apply theoretical material. The two periods of Professional Development and Placement provide first-hand experience of the working practices of film-related organisations and combine with the Film Industry strand to give a vocational character to the programme.

Level 4 provides a common, broad-based introduction to the subject area. Students practise a wide range of learning methods and consider the nature of academic and professional writing.

Level 5 provides for the deepening and extension of knowledge, understanding and skills, particularly in relation to the UK film industry and to world cinemas. It encourages students to show greater independence in their learning and the development of personal interests is encouraged through the Option modules.

Level 6 provides for the further deepening and extension of knowledge, understanding and skills, particularly in relation to the future of the audiovisual industries and to European cinemas. Through the 10,000 word essay in MFC 6124 and Option modules, it encourages the further and more specialised development of personal interests and independent learning.

6. Learning, Teaching and Assessment

6a) Statement of the strategy for Learning, Teaching and Assessment for the programme/scheme, including the development of active, vocational and ethicallyminded learning

The programme is consistent with the Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy of the Faculty of Media, Business and Marketing.

The Faculty aims to provide a stimulating learning environment

i) by aspiring to match best practice in HE in all aspects of the learning environment.

ii) by embedding the principles of active learning in its work.

The Faculty aims to provide a distinctive learning experience

- i) by fostering vocationally oriented aspects of learning wherever possible;
- ii) by engaging students with issues of ethics and values in appropriate curriculum contexts.

The programme in Film Studies meets the requirements of relevant policy documents, particularly the QAA Framework for HE Qualifications, QAA Subject Benchmark Statements, Leeds Trinity's vision and values and Strategic Plan and Leeds Trinity's Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy. The Faculty's Strategy for Learning, Teaching and Assessment defines key terms and provides for their dissemination to students.

The programme in Film Studies has been designed to ensure that students are provided with a coherent and progressive learning experience. Staff will liaise within and between levels of study to ensure the effective delivery of modules, to prepare students for progression from each level to the next and to foster a sense of the wholeness of the experience of the individual student.

The two major areas of knowledge, understanding and skills to be developed relate to Film Industry and Film Analysis, and these form two explicit strands in the programme structure. Taking account of the wide range of academic backgrounds of students likely to join the programme, these combine with other modules to provide a broad, common core in Level 4 and enable students to progress on equal terms to more complex and specialised areas in levels 5 and 6. Option modules offer students the opportunity to broaden their experience and reinforce their learning in areas of particular interest to them and in which the teaching staff have specialist knowledge. The two periods of professional development and placement provide the opportunity for students to apply their learning in a professional setting and to develop and evaluate their key transferable skills.

The programme uses a range of learning and teaching methods to reflect subject matter, student numbers and the search for variety and balance and seeks to encourage an appreciation of different learning styles and methods. The selection of learning and teaching methods seeks particularly to develop students' self-confidence by the use of workshops and seminars for focused group activities in Levels 4 and 5, and to develop students' independence by the increasing use of tutorials with an individual focus at Level 6. Academic methods and techniques required for independent learning are introduced gradually throughout Levels 4 and 5, and the Film Research module at Level 6 (MFC 6124) involves more explicit reflection on and systematic application of these methods and qualities.

At levels 4 and 5 two core modules per level will be delivered across one semester as 'short, fat modules'. This will allow students to focus more specifically on a particular area of study and provide a foundation and link between the two core modules. This will ensure progression across and through the levels.

Assessment in the programme in Film Studies

1. uses a variety of written forms and practical activities in order to reflect the academic and vocational / professional elements of the programme;

2. uses forms of work which are modelled on related professional practice as far as is consistent with working conditions and the requirements of effectiveness;

3. as a consequence of 2, is applied to group work only in strictly controlled situations;

4. progressively moves from testing breadth to depth of knowledge, understanding and skills;

5. as a consequence of 4, progressively limits the number of distinct items per module required for assessment.

6. reflects the College's vision and values by its concern with development and the affirmation of individual learners;

7. achieves effectiveness by means of College and Faculty procedures, policies and guidelines for design, marking and administration of processes.

10. Additional Information

Any special features: details regarding arrangements in respect of any special features of the programme/scheme, for example, study abroad, field course, attachment.

Regular film screenings will be organised to complement the teaching programme and increase opportunities for students to view appropriate material.

11. Additional support needs

Arrangements made to accommodate students with additional support needs wherever possible. Any unavoidable restrictions are listed below.

Students with disabilities will be welcomed on the course and reasonable adjustments will be made wherever possible to accommodate their individual needs. Students with serious visual or hearing impairments may be unable to undertake effective film analysis because of the combination of complex sensory information normally conveyed in film. As this is a core requirement of the programme, the implications of this will be discussed with the applicant at the application stage.
