2. Aims of the programme

Rationale and general aims, including what is special about this programme (from the student's and a marketing perspective)

Creative writing explores and expresses our thoughts and emotions in order to entertain, inform and stimulate readers. It both describes and shapes our world, as well as creating new ones. Through working with our published writers, you will develop your prose or poetic skills, and learning and writing strategies which will help you to find your own distinctive voice in your chosen medium. As well as this, there is a strong professional element in the course to guide you towards finding readers for your work.

The general aims of the programme are:

- To enable students who have the range of skills and knowledge appropriate to honours graduates in various related disciplines to develop their expertise in either poetry or prose.
- To equip students with reading practices which support their own writing.

4. Learning outcomes for subsidiary awards

Guidance

and will have had the opportunity to develop transferable skills relevant to employment related to the discipline.

5. Content

Summary of content by theme

(providing a 'vertical' view through the programme)

The programme offers two possible pathways – prose or poetry – at the core of which are the respective workshops which run in Semesters 1 and 2. In both pathways, work-in-progress will be circulated in advance for discussion and feedback at weekly sessions. Through sharing and discussing work in small groups you will use peer and tutor feedback to develop and hone your advanced writing skills and become self-reflecting writers.

In addition to this, two further modules provide skills in support of the central focus. Reading as a Writer discusses a range of contemporary British and international novels and poetry collections in order to provide useful exempla for meeting personal creative challenges, which may involve short writing exercises. Writing as a Profession centres upon a series of talks by visiting writers and professionals from the book industry, (e.g. editors, literary agents) as well as seminars led by the programme tutors, providing students with insights into aspects of publishing, markets for writing, and presentation of work, which they will be able to put into practice with their own work.

The Dissertation follows the taught modules and offers support for an extended creative piece built upon the foundations of the Workshop modules.

Full-time students will complete the Reading as a Writer and Writing as a Profession modules alongside the Workshop modules, whilst part-time students will take Reading as a Writer and Writing as a Profession in the first year and the Workshop modules in the second year.

7. Learning, teaching and assessment

7a) Statement of the strategy for learning, teaching and assessment for the programme

Concise reference should be made to the LTA Strategy 2015-20. You may wish to refer to the Programme Checklist (see A6.1).

Please also refer to how graduate skills/attributes are developed throughout the programme.

Concise reference should be made to the LTA Strategy 2015-20. You may wish to refer to the Programme Checklist (see A6.1).

The key aim of the course is to nurture the individual's distinctive writing, and it is our belief that this is best achieved by a mixture of engagement with one's writing peers and guidance from tutors. For this reason, workshop modules will be taught through group discussion in order to provide a 'challenging and stimulating' environment which is also supportive of individual development. The first workshop module will be assessed through an initial project proposal and a short prose or poetry submission, both of which will provide the basis for further individual discussion with the tutor in order to shape work in progress. The second workshop module will build upon and extend the prose or poetry already written through a further short submission and written self-reflection.

The Workshop modules will focus upon student work-in-progress and, in turn, provide the foundation for the Dissertation, during which you will receive individual support to develop your work into a fuller piece, such as a short story, substantial novel extract, or poetry collection.

It is a truism to state that in order to write well, one must read widely and attentively. Reading as a Writer will focus upon a selection of contemporary poetry and prose, focusing upon writing strategies employed by some of the most successful British and international writers of today. You will be encouraged to reflect on how consideration of the methods of others may enrich your own writing. This will be taught through seminars and assessed on a portfolio, and aims to enable 'confident, empowered and engaged' individuals.

Few writers write without wishing to be read. Through a series of talks by visiting speakers, followed by discussions, you will be introduced to the business side of writing, such as approaching agents, dealing with publishers (editors, copy-editors, publicists, marketing teams, etc), and small press publication. These talks will be supplemented by seminars led by the programme tutors and focusing on key practical aspects of the writing profession (e.g. reading and performance of work, producing 'pitch' material for agents and editors, self-promotion through social media and the internet) and the contemporary publishing and bookselling industry. Writing as a Profession will also consider the numerous fields in which writers are employed and is congruent with the University's LTA strategy on employability.
