2. Aims of the programme

Rationale and general aims

The Master of Business Administration (MBA) is a broad-based programme designed to provide graduates in disciplines other than just those closely related to business and management with the necessary knowledge, understanding, skills and strategic thinking required for successful performance in a variety of management and business contexts.

The programme is designed to offer you the opportunity to access the most recent research and scholarship directly related to core business management and administration specialisms.

As such, it is particularly suitable if you are a recent graduate who requires a bridge between your undergraduate studies and the needs of employment.

Equally, it is suitable if you are already in mid-level management or looking at a career change as a means of supporting professional and career development. It is also appropriate if you are an experienced manager who wants to develop a more theoretical understanding of the wide range of knowledge, skills and abilities which underpin the modern business environment and obtain a qualification which would help enhance career development.

The purpose of the MBA programme is to educate participants as managers and business specialists and, thus, to improve the quality of management as a profession.

The aims of the programme are:

- the development of your advanced knowledge of organisations, their management and the changing external context in which they operate;
- the development of your ability (skills) to apply knowledge and understanding of business and management to complex issues, both systematically and creatively, to improve business and management practice;
- the development and enhancement of your employability through the development of professional skills;
- the enhancement of your lifelong learning skills and personal development to enable you to work with self-direction and originality and to contribute to business and society at large.

There is a particular focus on employability and the programme includes a core Leadership and Professional Development module which helps you in strategic career planning and developing your leadership capabilities. This module encourages you to reflect on your own career plans. It identifies key employability skills and pathways for development and will complement your work on the management consultancy organisation-based project.

The programme takes an integrative approach to developing your analytical skills and ability to address complex business problems and implement appropriate solutions and adopts international perspectives to ensure relevance in today's global economy.

The programme modules are integrated by a number of cross-cutting themes, as follows:

- Strategy (in Marketing, Finance and Operations modules)
- Business ethics and corporate social responsibility (with special lectures on these topics within Finance, Operations and Management Consultancy Project modules)
- International Business (all modules contain case studies and examples of UK and international companies operating globally).

In this context, non-UK students are particularly welcome for the experience, skills and context related knowledge they bring, enriching the overall international learning experience.

Module content is carefully designed to include internationally relevant and applicable theory, drawing on a range of UK and international case studies and research from across the globe.

At the end of the programme, you will be able to demonstrate a broad knowledge and understanding of organisations, the external context in which they operate and how they are managed. You will be able to understand, respond to and lead change and be able to demonstrate intellectual breadth by making integrative links across functional areas of business.

4. Content

Summary of content by theme
(providing a 'vertical' view through the programme)

The MBA programme offers the essential knowledge and understanding, skills and experience required for you to operate effectively and successfully in a business environment. Core areas of the programme focus on contemporary management concepts, the understanding of business and management functions, operations, the external context and the development of transferable/employability skills – communication/presentation, teamwork, leadership, problem-solving, analysis and business decision-making.

This is followed by individual research (Management Consultancy Project). You will be supported by Leeds Trinity Employer Partnership Office (EPO) specialists in negotiating access to a suitable business/organisational context, where you can conduct your research project and apply acquired theoretical knowledge in practice. This will result in you being able to produce business recommendations, conduct your research as a management consultant for an organisation and support the development of your employability skills.

The Leadership and Professional Development module helps you with strategic career planning and to develop your management and leadership capabilities, whilst core modules ensure the integration of a range of business subjects (Finance, Marketing, Operations / Supply Chain Management) and a holistic view on complex real-life business issues at strategic and operational level.

The core of the programme is generalist, providing a broad, analytical and integrated study of business and management, and covers all the key functional areas of business and management: Marketing, Finance and Operations.

The core modules incorporate cross-cutting themes of economics, international business, business ethics and corporate social responsibility, while theory and practice are integrated through extensive use of UK and international case studies and real business examples.

The option modules, Starting and Growing Your Own Business, Services Marketing, Human Resources Management and Project Management, allow you to individualise your programme of study and to develop a degree of specialism.

The Management Consultancy Project allows you to develop your business research and client management skills, to apply and test your theoretical understanding of management disciplines in real-life applications and to investigate and resolve practical business issues by using robust and academically grounded research methodologies. It is anticipated that the project will also build your in-depth knowledge and understanding in one of five core subject areas (K1-5: External Environment, People and Organisations, Key Functional Specialism, Customer Orientation and Strategy), depending on your area of interest. Desk-based research projects can be undertaken as a back-up option.

6. Learning, teaching and assessment

6a) Statement of the strategy for learning, teaching and assessment for the programme

The entrants to the programme come from a broad mix of disciplines and backgrounds, which facilitates a multi-perspective, interactive, learning process. The programme attempts to maximise available opportunities for participants to reflect on their knowledge, experience and practice, particularly through a process of peer interaction and team work. This enables students with limited work experience to benefit from the experience of others and students who are returning to HE from academic skills of more recent graduates. The integration of UK and international case studies in each module brings an international and cross-cultural dimension into the learning. This leads participants to be more self-aware and to be able to modify and develop their own and others' business practices, as well as to work in diverse teams and an international business context.

To facilitate the progression of students into a management career, there will be a focus on inviting qualified and active management and business practitioners as guest speakers, visiting lecturers and potential employers. Each MBA student will also have an Academic Mentor to receive advice on their programme of study and how to make it relevant to their individual interests and career aspirations. Personal and career development will be facilitated through the Leadership and Professional Development module, EPO support and individual advice from a dedicated Careers Adviser.

As students progress through the programme, they will be required to demonstrate appropriate levels of subject knowledge and understanding, subject specific skills, intellectual skills and the effective use of transferable/employability skills.

The learning and teaching process develops knowledge of a range of subject areas and the ability to handle a breadth of material. Students are expected to develop mastery as a whole through an explicit process of integrating these subjects to give a holistic understanding of the broad field of business and management. Tutor-led sessions have a strong conceptual and theoretical emphasis and an appropriate pace, going further and faster than at undergraduate level. "Theory into practice" is developed by a variety of methods, including case studies, visiting practitioners, the business simulation/game and the individual project.

Assessment includes assessing the rigour of academic arguments as well as the application of theory. Assessment also requires participants to demonstrate a practical and integrative approach to a problem area or issue. A range of assessment methods is deployed to facilitate this and includes traditional examinations, essays, case study/market analysis reports, individual and team presentations, a research project proposal, a business/marketing/project plan, a personal portfolio and a management consultancy project report.
