

Programme Specification

With effect from: September 2022

A programme specification is the definitive record of your programme of study at the University. It sets out the aims, learning outcomes, and indicative content of the programme. You should read this programme specification alongside the relevant module descriptors and the University's Taught Programme Academic Regulations.

This specification only applies to the delivery of the programme indicated below. The details in this specification are subject to change through the modifications or periodic review processes.

1 Programme name and award

This programme specification relates to the following award(s)

BSc (Hons) Psychology with Sociology

2 Aims of the programme

Rationale and general aims, including what is special about this programme

The BSc (Hons) Psychology with Sociology programme provides you with a firm grounding in all core areas of psychology, coupled with an opportunity to study selected topics in Sociology alongside this. The sociology modules on the programme enable students to develop understanding of sociological theory as it is applied to a range of areas.

The programme also focuses on the development of employability skills to enable you to be an ethically and socially responsible participant in your community and in your graduate career.

The programme also explores and challenges the historical legacy of the social science. Psychology has, throughout its history, privileged a white Westernised account of human behaviour, and sociology is perceived as originating in Europe and has also privileged Eurocentric accounts and views of the world. This has led to the perpetuation of social inequality and social injustice for groups of people not reflected in that privileged view of the world. In tackling these issues, through, for example, the inclusion of issues of race and culture in a range of case studies, the programme asks you to consider what role psychology and sociology should play in the 21st Century.

This is a combined honours programme which means that 75% of the module credits at each level will be Psychology and the remaining 25% will be Sociology.

The programme aims to:

1. develop your scientific and critical understanding of the mind, brain, behaviour and experience, and the complex interactions between these;
2. develop your critical understanding of sociological theory as applied to a range of concepts.
3. develop your research skills to allow you to investigate a range of experience and behaviour, including an evaluation of the ethical issues surrounding psychological research and practice;
4. develop your transferable personal, practical and intellectual skills to enable you to confidently pursue a graduate career;

provide you with the British Psychological Society (BPS) Graduate Basis for Chartered Membership (GBC), which is the first step towards a career as a Chartered Psychologist.

3 Level Learning Outcomes and Employability Outcomes

Learning outcomes are expressed in terms of:

- Knowledge and understanding (K)
- Intellectual / cognitive / 'thinking' skills (I)
- Practical skills specific to the subject (P)
- Employability skills (E)

We design assessment tasks to enable you to demonstrate the Level Learning Outcomes and relevant Employability Outcomes for your level of study. To a greater or lesser extent, all Level Learning Outcomes at each level of your study are embedded in the assessment task(s) at that level. This means we can take a more integrated view of your overall performance at a level.

To progress to the next level, or to receive an award, you will need to satisfy the Level Learning Outcomes below and relevant Employability Outcomes and achieve credit as per the Taught Programme Academic Regulations.

4 External Benchmarks

Statement of congruence with the relevant external benchmarks

All Leeds Trinity University programmes are congruent with the Framework for HE Qualifications (FHEQ) and, where appropriate, the Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) / National Qualification and Credit Framework (NQF).

The programme is congruent with the QAA Benchmark Statements for Psychology (2019) and Sociology (2019) and the curriculum requirements of the British Psychological Society.

5 Indicative Content

Summary of content by theme

Psychology

You will study a curriculum designed to provide a thorough grounding in core domains (biological, cognitive, developmental, individual differences and social psychology), underpinning further study of specialised areas in the final year.

Sociology

The sociology modules introduce students to sociological theory in the first year and then in the second and third years apply this knowledge to a range of areas including, in the second year, understanding life in the digital age. In the third year, a module is chosen from a range of options covering topics such as society, gender, justice and policing.

Research Skills

Skills in research and analysis are introduced and developed in the research methods modules in the first two years. This then culminates in an individual research project in the final year in which you will be supervised to design and undertake a small-scale piece of research in an area of your choice.

Professional and Personal Development

The programme is accredited by the British Psychological Society (BPS) as conferring eligibility for the Graduate Basis for Chartered Membership, provided the minimum standard of a Lower Second Class Honours is achieved. This is the first step towards becoming a Chartered Psychologist.

The programme also provides a balanced and career-relevant education for those not seeking a career in psychology. Embedded within the programme are professional skills, including a professional placement in each of the second and third years and the option to undertake a placement or engage in a professional challenge project in the first year. We also focus on assessment methods throughout the programme that help you to develop the kinds of skills that are valued by employers.

Your personal development is supported by your Personal Tutor who you will meet regularly to review your personal development goals and achievements.
